THE RESERVATIONS

Matter. Redlight reservations are illegal and in authority in a city charter to create a reservation where bewdy houses and prostitutes shall not be subject to crim-inal prosecution is in conflict with article 1, section 28, of the constitution of

This decision, rendered by justice W. S. Fly, of the fourth court of civil appeals, and concurred in by the other justices, makes the action of the city council in legalizing the reservation dis-trict unconstitutional. The decision was rendered by the civil court of appeals last Wednesday and is the decision in the famous Houston reservation case.

The county and precinct officers at Houston attempted to prosecute the in-mates of the Houston reservation for violation of the law. These inmates asked the district court for an injunction to prevent the officers from serving the Dr. R. D. Robinson. Practice limited papers. The injunction was granted and diseases of children and orthopedic made perpetual. The case was appealed the district court reversed and the entire injunction proceeding dismissed and it was declared by the court that it was the duty of the officers to prosecute the inmates as vagrants. The Houston city charter is similar in construction to that of El Paso by which the council and mayor have attempted to legalize the reservation district. In rendering the decision, the higher court held that article 1, section 28, of the constitution, provides that no power of suspending laws in the state can be exercised except by the legislation. can be exercised except by the legisla-ture. It further held that it was inconceivable that a Texas legislature would confer upon a municipal government the right not only to regulate but to license crime and to give it in certain location approbation and approval. Crime, it was held, is defined and punished and it would be monstrous to allow the liceuse or regulation of a thing expressly hibited by law. Regulation, the decision said, implies the right to perform or do-certain acts and cannot be applied to matters inhibited by law and good morais. Another point has been raised about the proposed legalizing of the restricted district. The proposed ordinance says: "It shall be unlawful to establish a bawdy house in any other part of the city than the district assigned and that bawdy houses and their inmutes shall not be molested as long as they keep within fines can be collected from the inmates of the reservation houses since it has been legalized by the city. They will then be violating no law and will not be subject to fine as they are at present.
